Hensley Wins Big Victory

The vote received by Congressman W. L. Hensley at the primary at which he received 2500 more votes than his two opponents is a well deserved compliment to a faithful representative of the people of this district in congress. He stayed on the job and looked after the people's interest while his two opponents were canvassing the district and the democrats looked after his interests when it came to voting at the primary. The party and the people appreciate faithful service and that is why Hensley is strong. He will be elected in November.—DeSoto Press.

Negro Says Republicans Only Use His Race On Election Day

The following is an extract from a speech made to a bunch of Paris negroes by a local colored democrat at the depot Saturday night. He was sitting on a truck beneath the stars and delivered himself in this fashion:

"The Lawd said, 'Pharao, turn my people loose,' and when he didn't do it, and the Lawd said again, 'Pharao, turn my people loose,' and when he didn't do it the Lawd tuk Pharao down to the Red Sea and chucked him in. That Mistah Wilson, he say, 'Karanzy, set my niggers free,' an' when he didn't do it that Mistah Wilson he say again, 'Karanzy, turn my niggers loose or Ize comin' after 'em.' Still he don't do it an that Mistah Wilson he say, 'Karanzy, turn my niggers loose—bring 'em right home yo'self—or that's going to be hell to pay.' An' next day to million white men with the big dogs on flat ca's started for Mexico. You know what happened? Afo' dey got there old Karanzy done turned them niggers loose, give 'em a Palm Beach suit of clothes an' a bottle of 'mule' apiece, put 'em on a Pullman ca' sent 'em home. An' on the way they met Mistah Wilson, an' he says, 'Boys, I was jes' comin' to git you if it tuk every white man in the Newnited States to do it. No man kin lock my niggers up 'er pose on 'em and not hear from me. Come on an' git some ob dis water-melon.' Ever hear of a republican doin' anything like dat? Naw, you didn't. That Mr. Wilson is shounff white folks. Republicans ain't got no use for a nigger cept on election day."—Paris Mercury.

In Memory of Ben Page

Ben Page, son of Rev. Jesse Page, a former Bollinger county citizen but now of Kennett, died Tuesday of typhoid fever at the Boone Terre hospital.

He was a member of the Mount Zion Baptist church and a devout Christian, having been converted June 28 of this year.

He was a very intelligent and pleasant young man. He leaves a host of relatives and friends in Bollinger county. In fact every one who knew Ben was his friend, so pleasant was his life in general.

He is gone but not forgotten and is now at rest beyond this dark world of sorrow so let us be comforted by his last words, "I am ever trusting in God," and try to follow his footsteps during his Christian life.

His remains were interred in Mt. Zion cemetery Thursday, August 3.

A FRIENDObituary

On June 24, 1916, our Supreme Ruler saw fit to call to rest one we loved so dearly, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith.

Clemo was a good natured, kind hearted child and to say the least loved by all who knew him. But God hath prepared a better place for him than this earthly world for heaven called to himself one of His chosen.

Mrs. Lulu VanAamburg Estes, the beloved wife of R. B. Estes, and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. VanAamburg, was born December 29, 1888.

In her early years she gave her heart to Jesus and from that day to the day of her death she endeavored to serve him as is becoming to His children.

October 8, 1913, she was united in marriage to R. B. Estes of Burfordville.

The high esteem and love in which she was held by those of her acquaintances were manifest in anxious inquiries before her death as to her condition and the great crowd which were in attendance upon her being laid away.

She leaves a husband, father and mother, and one brother to mourn her departure.

We do not understand the workings of the Almighty in that He should see fit to take her to Himself when so young and might have lived so much longer to bless His name, but "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord." May the family take courage and strength in the promises of our Lord that we shall see her again.

When friends and loved ones from afar And blinding tears are shed,

When mother earth resolves her own That now to us are dead,

The promise of our Lord is near.

To calm our bleeding hearts,

We'll meet them when they shall appear

No more from them will part.

Dry Leader For Gardner

Charles M. Hay, who is recognized as the leader of the "drys" in Missouri, will stump the state in the interest of Col. Frederick D. Gardner, the democratic nominee for governor, and the entire national and state tickets.

Hay formerly represented Callaway county in the legislature, but for several years has practiced law in St. Louis. He supported John M. Atkinson for governor in the recent primary campaign.

The democratic party did not make any move in nominating Col. Gardner," said Mr. Hay.

"He is a man of distinct personality, is fearless, had been a successful business man, and has the esteem and respect of the voters of Missouri. His popularity was evidenced by his vote at the primaries. It is true I supported Mr. Atkinson, but there will be no man in this state who will give our nominee for governor more hearty support than I."

"I am ready to start out at once and tour the counties to re-elect President Wilson and help make Gardner the successor to Governor Major."

"The coming campaign will be waged on strictly party lines. The liquor question will not be injected into the fight. Missouri is a democratic state. With the wet and dry controversy entirely eliminated, it assures a victory for the entire democratic state ticket."—Exchange.

The Country Papers.

Sometime has told a story of a tramp who drifted, as many do, into the office of a big daily newspaper and asked for a copy of the little country paper from his home town. There was about him the something that spoke of better days, but he was one of the many to whom life is unknown—just a pitiable bit of human wreckage. He didn't want to read one of the big dailies—he didn't care what great men and nations were doing, nor how history was being made. He wanted the little paper from back home—he wanted to know about the folks that had been Jack and Hank and Bill to him. The home paper would take him back to the clean, sweet days of his boyhood and young manhood when life was wholesome and the future a rose-hued dream. He got the paper and with thanks and a touch of his battered hat walked out. It was the last tie that held him to the old home. Some day it may draw him back there—who knows?

The big dailies have tried to get the little country papers—and the jobs sound cheap. Possibly to one who doesn't know country life it may sound funny to read that Hank Smith and family visited with Mr. and Mrs. Green, Sunday, or that Tom Jones has purchased a new barn. What the Smiths and Greens and their carts and teams and all the dash and glitz of fashionable week-end, but the student figure is the sensational divorce case of the season or crime and seems fashionable work. Smiles are certainly oftenest. Undoubtedly it is probably less important than a handshake on Main Street, but it contributes more to the pattern of the world.

The little country paper in bringing the simple things of the country scenes—some are as old as memory that which is most worth while. The true American is outside the cities. It is the park country-side and the small towns. In these the strength of the nation is rooted. Then its strength is created and its most precious ideals are elaborated. The country papers must be true in this line of which they are a part, to live.

They are, therefore, doing a work of the highest value. Their efforts toward pure government are of more worth to the nation than the efforts of the big dailies in making up great cities. And, as Fred said, the country white man made the power, I think. He must seek kindly on the little country papers which seek to make the most of his work.

Push the Good Things Along

When you see or hear of a good thing in this community push it along. Push hard and keep on pushing. You can accomplish wonders for your home town by following such a course. It has its effect on the outside world and it induces other local citizens to follow your lead.

A few pushers can do some things and can accomplish a few results, but it requires the efforts of a united people to make a dent in the world.

Lets all get together and make the dent—Caruthersville Democrat

Ed Baldwin, employed by Koehler Bros. in a hay field at Minden, was killed by a gasoline power hay press Monday afternoon. As he was at work about the press the young man fell over the hopper. Before he could regain his poise the fork that pushes the hay into the baler caught his clothing and pushed him to the bottom of the hopper, crushing him.
